

Achieving high standards in infection control

The dental profession has experienced a period of rapid change in infection control requirements following the introduction in England of HTM 01-05 and the Code of Practice on preventing and controlling infections. Learn from industry experts on how these requirements affect your practice and how to ensure compliance. This one day course will demonstrate both essential and best practice in managing infection control.

By the end of the course you will:

- understand the origins of the infection control dento legal problems and how they inter-relate
- be introduced to standard practice precautions and measures of personal protection for your staff
- know how to maintain high standards of decontamination and comply with HTM 01-05
- have tips to improve the safe management of healthcare waste in your practice.

Who should attend?

This one day training course is suitable for the whole dental team.

Why should you attend?

This course will bring you up to date with the latest developments within infection control and how to incorporate best practice standards with the new guidelines.
